

New Zealand Doctor Rata Aotearoa

MEDIA KIT 2024

New Zealand Doctor Rata Aotearoa's award-winning team of experienced health reporters and clinical contributors provide New Zealand's only source of news on general practice and primary care.

We are New Zealand's national medical newspaper and a must-read for anyone wanting to keep up with the ever-changing health-sector landscape.

A subscription package provides access to a fortnightly print publication, daily email newsletter and website.

New Zealand Doctor is proud to have been in primary care for over 30 years.

How often?

New Zealand Doctor newspaper is published every fortnight on Wednesday. Our website, www.nzdoctor.co.nz is updated daily, and each weekday afternoon we send out our email newsletter, +DailyTriage.

How many?

Around 2500 people subscribe to our publication and over 80 per cent of general practices receive a copy. Around 18000 users check out our website each week and 2200 people subscribe to our email newsletter, +DailyTriage.

Who reads us?

Subscribers include GPs, GP registrars, GP locums, practice nurses, nurse practitioners, practice managers, PHO and DHB leaders and a broad range of specialists, primary care practitioners, allied health professionals, politicians, lawyers, accountants and NGOs.

EDITORIAL CONTENT

News – Covering the gamut of general practice and primary care – business, politics, people at the coalface and at the national level.

Opinion – Editor's column, invited contributors, regular columnists and letters to the editor. Regular bulletins from sector groups.

Business – Content includes practice management, human resources, health IT, and app reviews.

Practice – The clinical section is commissioned from GPs and specialists practising in the areas of sports medicine, occupational health, elder health, pathology, immunology, cardiology, mental health, medicolegal, dermatology, eye health, genetic medicine and child health. It also provides clinical updates and case studies on topical issues.

How to Treat – In alternate issues, GP experts and specialists discuss in detail the treatment of a particular clinical condition.

Off duty – Music, film, travel and other miscellany

GPs can earn CPD points by reading the clinical content

ADVERTISING IN PRINT

Display advertising

The display rates are based on a volume discount basis and on the total spend in our publication over a 12-month period. Our rate card includes a number of sizing alternatives, but we would be happy to discuss any special requirements you may have. Specific page placements attract a $200 loading fee.

Inserts and onserts

Inserts can be inserted into the fold of the newspaper or placed into a specified page within the issue. This is a great way of getting additional information to the doctors and primary care professionals in a standard form. Inserts are ideal if you already have a brochure printed and are seeking a way to distribute these to the profession.

Onserts are attached to a certain page. Again, an excellent way to give out additional information that can be kept, or to make up part of a launch or special project.

Contact Rhonda Jackson for delivery details. Please deliver inserts and onserts seven days prior to issue date.

Sponsorship of educational articles from New Zealand Doctor make excellent sales and learning tools

How To Treat (monthly) and Practice (fortnightly) are New Zealand Doctor's educational articles independently written by clinical experts and endorsed by the RNZCGP for GP CPD credits. To maintain the right to be issued with a practising certificate, doctors must meet recertification and CPD requirements. These requirements motivate GPs to read these educational articles. How To Treat and clinical Practice articles are also hosted online for two years.
